

Last month Art & Design students from across all courses, levels and age ranges at Truro College unveiled their work at 'In View', the sixteenth annual Art & Design exhibition at Lemon Quay, Truro.

The Arts Society Truro presented 4 awards to outstanding students on the 'A' Level courses in Textiles, 3D Design, Fine Art and Graphic Design.

On the next two pages we present the work of 'our' winning students.

'In View' - Truro College's Art and Design Exhibition by Polly Kettle, The Arts Society Truro Young Arts Representative

"Forever stay inquisitive", these were the wise words from Sam Bassett (artist in St Ives) who awarded the prizes to the students from Truro College.

Now in its sixteenth year this Art and Design Exhibition has become part of the cultural calendar of Cornwall a justified claim from Mark Dunford, Team Leader for Art & Design.

The Arts Society Truro played a part in the award ceremony thanks to the generosity of its members buying raffle tickets each month. The money raised from the sale of these tickets funds the monetary awards that are presented to students whose work is represented in the following four categories, Textiles, Fine Art, Graphics and 3D.

Five committee members from The Arts Society Truro visited the exhibition on Tuesday to make their selection from the amazing array of work on display at Lemon Quay. The originality and diversity of work being exhibited made the task all the more challenging.

The selected winners:

Orli Duane A Level Fine Art

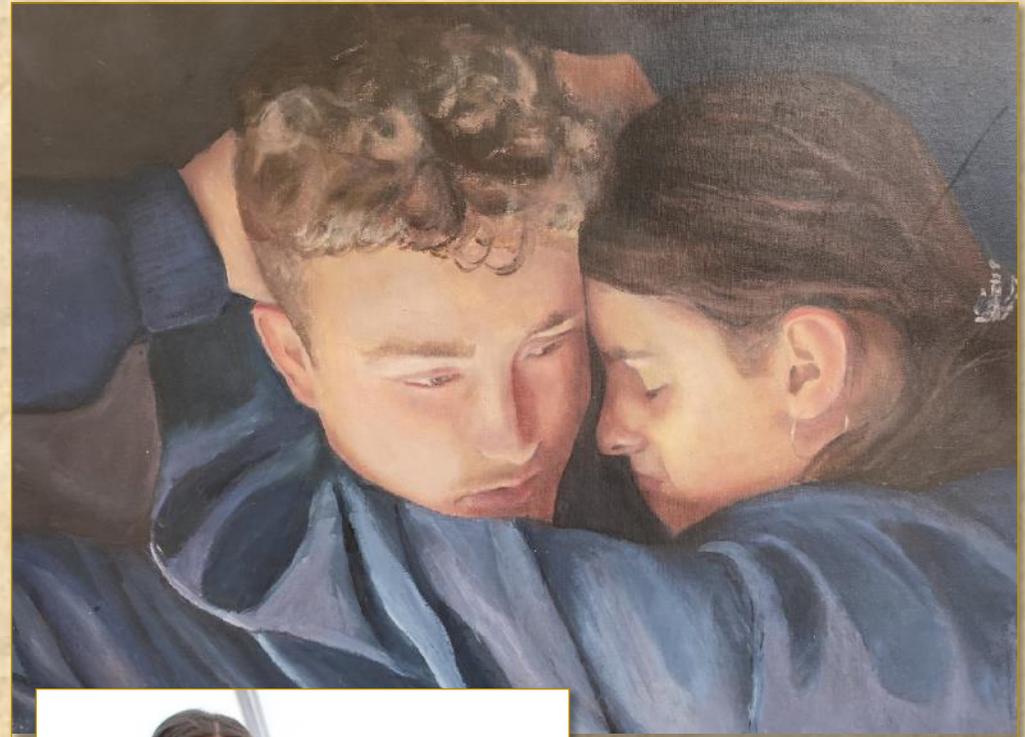

This was singled out for the President's Award from The Arts Society Truro

Georgie Luscombe A Level Textiles

Maddie Barrowman A Level 3D Design

Maddie was also given an award from CAD Architects as well as the Arts Society

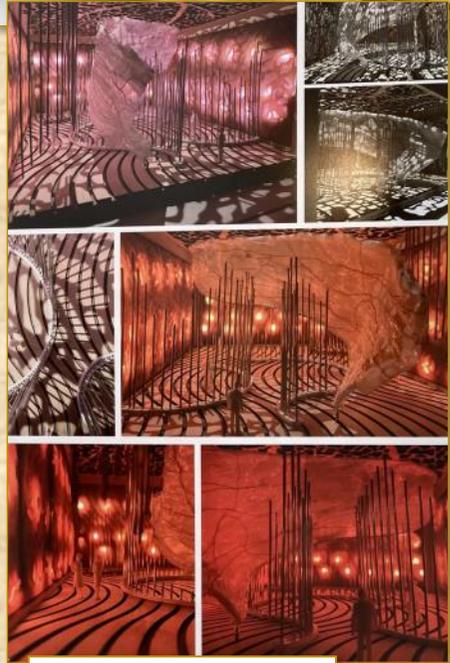

Anucha Smyth A Level Graphics and Illustration

Fine Art

The Arts Society Truro's judges were very moved by Orli Duane's poignant artwork.

She won the President's Award presented by Karen Kitson, AS Truro Chair.

3D Design

You could almost walk through Maddie Barrowman's design, giving us a real sense of space, assisted by her visual artwork.
